

CONFERENCE HELD FRIDAY

Number of Saloons and Men to be Granted Liquor Licenses Agreed Upon.

COMMISSIONERS WERE HERE

And Met With Local Politicians.—

All the Saloons For Seymour
the Law Allows.

Seymour is to have fifteen saloons and it has been practically determined that the successful applicants shall be.

These matters were settled at a secret conference held here Friday afternoon, in which the county commissioners and a number of prominent Democratic politicians of the city participated. Among the latter were, it is stated, some city officials. These officials urged the granting of all the licenses the law will permit in order to help fill up the city treasury. The list of applicants for license, 17 in number, was considered and a decision reached as to who the two who must fail shall be.

One of the two men slated for a turn-down, unless there is a new deal by next week, is Bert Cox, who is making application for license to open a saloon on West Second street. It has been reported for some time that Cox's standing with the commissioners and the local powers was below par and that he would lose out.

The other applicant who, according to yesterday's frame up will not be given a license, is John Goodale. This news comes as a surprise to many. He was a liquor dealer here for many years and has a record of having kept an orderly place and observed the laws.

It is reported however, that he is not in the good graces of the two commissioners who are credited with controlling the board's actions.

There has been a belief that one of the men who would lose out would be Knowles Mann, on account of the opposition that exists to establishing a saloon opposite a church. The room in which he proposes to open a saloon is on the southwest corner of Ewing and Third streets.

There is according to Friday's agreement, one chance for Goodale to secure a license and that is the possibility of Mann selling his building before the licenses are granted. The report that he has a trade on was known yesterday and it was decided that in case he should not apply Goodale's application will be granted. Mann this morning expressed his intention of filing an application.

Today some of Goodale's friends were quietly at work in an effort to get him on the winning slate.

As to politics, the 17 applicants for license are about equally divided. The two men who at present are scheduled to fail are both Republicans.

Friday before the commissioners disappeared from the streets to attend the conference, they were besieged by the applicants who were anxious to press their cases and secure assurance that they would be taken care of.

The board will meet Monday but the licenses will not, it is understood, be granted before Tuesday or Wednesday.

nesday when the complete list of successful applicants will be given out.

The commissioners have the authority to investigate the records and characters of the applicants and if any of the men should fail to show up well under the official X-ray, license could be refused them.

It is not expected however, that the examination in this county will be a trying ordeal for any one, probably not much more than a formality and the fifteen will receive licenses.

At Columbus the examination of applicants and the investigation into their characters was rigid and very searching.

ON WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Death of Joseph Allen, Father of Morton Allen of Seymour.

Joseph P. Allen, a prominent citizen of Tunnelton, and father of Morton Allen of Seymour, died Friday at his home after a short illness.

He was 76 years old and had always lived in or near Tunnelton. Until retirement from active work a few years ago, he was a successful farmer.

During the civil war he served in the 93rd Indiana infantry.

He was married to Miss Elizabeth Flinn April 28, 1858, so that his death occurred on his fifty-third wedding anniversary. He was the father of nine children and they with his wife, survive him. Several of the children live at Tunnelton.

The funeral services will be held at the Tunnelton Methodist church at 10:30 o'clock Sunday.

DIED.

WEINLAND.—Homer C. Weinland, aged 32 years, died at his home near Burney this morning of uremic poison. He was sick only a few days and was about until Friday. He leaves a wife, one daughter, Dorothy, and three step-children, two brothers and two sisters. His sisters, Mrs. Jay C. Smith and Miss Ella Weinland, of Seymour, have gone to Burney to remain until after the funeral.

Died in Oklahoma.

Lieut. John Wasknon, an old soldier, well known in this county, died Wednesday April 26, at his home at Chickasha, Okla.

PARENTS' DAY.

Will Be Observed in City Schools
May 19th.

Arrangements are being made to observe Parents' Day in the city schools May 19. The parents will be invited to visit the schools of the city that day and inspect the work being done and learn more of the conduct of the schools. The visitors will be welcomed in all of the rooms at the different buildings.

Examination Held.

An examination was held here today for life or professional license. It was under the supervision of the State Board of Education and was conducted by Mrs. J. C. Webb, of Franklin, the wife of a member of the Board. Miss Kate Andrews of this city, and a Mr. Rhodes, of Greensburg, took the examination. Nine examinations were held in Indiana today by the State Board. There were two divisions of the examinations. One was for college graduates and the other for non-college graduates who had already passed the first division of the examination.

Sixteen Candidates.

A class of 16 candidates were initiated by the Court of Honor lodge Friday evening at the regular meeting. C. L. Simmons, state manager, was present and complimented the team highly on their floor work and the officers and members for the growth and standing of this lodge. After the work lunch was served and all enjoyed a social hour.

From E. E. Hopewell.

Fergus Falls, Minn., April 26, 1911. Dear Mr. Ross:

I have just read a letter in the Seymour paper from Mr. Gross who is now with the Jeffersonville Business College. I wish to say that Mr. Gross is not the only one who has been helped by your instructions. I used to seek positions; now I am compelled to decline them. I have been offered some excellent positions lately, but I expect to stay with the P. R. L. College next year.

Every thing is going well with us; in fact it has been ever since I took up this work. I am more pleased with my work each day and never have a desire to enter into the grocery business again. The only thing I regret about my work is that I did not start it a little earlier in life, however, the prospects look bright for me.

Our school closes June 14th; we expect to be in Seymour by June 16th or 17th.

Your Friend,

E. E. HOPEWELL.

P. S.—If you think this letter would be any inducement to get some other wandering boy on the right road, you have my permission to show it to them or to let the public know it by putting it in the paper. I have been helped, and I am glad to help others if I can.

TREATING HIM MOST ROYALLY

Judge O. H. Montgomery Guest of Honor at a Dinner in Phoenix.

ARIZONA GOVERNOR A GUEST.

Other Prominent Men Present.—

Speech Making and Social Time
Followed Feast.

While Judge Montgomery of this city, is in the southwest recuperating, he is enjoying himself and is being well treated. The Arizona Republican of Phoenix, in its issue of April 25, said:

Dr. Grant Monical was host last night at a delightful little dinner in the Ford hotel at which Judge O. H. Montgomery, recently of the supreme bench in Indiana, was the guest of honor. Covers were laid for ten, nearly all of them being gentlemen high in the legal profession, and the rest of them former residents of Indiana and personal friends of the distinguished jurist.

Those present beside Judge Montgomery and Dr. Monical were: Governor R. E. Sloan, Chief Justice Edward Kent, Judge J. H. Kibbey, W. W. McNeff, E. S. Dunlevy, Frank Cox, H. B. St. Claire and Dr. N. W. Brayton. The dinner was a sumptuous one and was followed by a period of speechmaking, story telling and sociability.

Judge Montgomery was a boyhood friend of H. B. St. Claire of this city and his rise in his profession has been continuous and marked from his early study of the law. He served Indiana as a member of the supreme court for six years, being retired by the democratic landslide last year that put more than one distinguished republican out of official business, not only in Indiana but elsewhere. Judge Montgomery is here for a period of rest and recuperation and will spend several weeks in looking over the valley.

How Crothersville Sees Us.

We don't know whether to say that Seymour is on the boom or bum. Since we are confronted with the number of thefts reported recently there and the city going into mob-law rule. But we would say to them in the language of Him who created the earth and the fullness thereof that a house divided against itself cannot stand.—Crothersville Herald.

A STRANGER

Forced His Way Into Robert Woodard's Home at an Early Hour.

About three o'clock this morning a stranger, apparently a person of unsound mind, forced admittance to the home of Robert Woodard, who lives on the Brownstown road near Seymour. It required the combined efforts of Mr. Woodard and his son Walter, to expel the intruder from the house.

Neither of the Woodards knew the man and they thought he acted more like a demented person than a house-breaker or robber. When he was finally forced to leave the house, he went out through the barn lot, acting as though he was familiar with the premises. The police were notified and all of the neighbors were warned to be on the lookout for the man, but there has been no report of his bothering any one since he left the Woodard place.

Measurements Made.

At the request of the post office department at Washington, E. B. Douglass, city engineer, has measured the distances from the center of Pfaffenberger site, at the corner of Third and Chestnut streets, to each of the railroad stations. It is supposed the information was desired in connection with the location of the federal building here. The Pfaffenberger site was found to be within the limit of distance which would require each of the railroad companies to carry the mail between the office and stations.

Making Big Preparations.

The Red Men are preparing for a big celebration here on St. Tamany day, May 14. There will be a parade and an all day meeting in the city park to which the public is cordially invited. A member of the local lodge says that the people are asked to come and bring their dinners and the children and spend a pleasant day. Past Great Sachem Sedgwick, of Martinsville will be the orator for the day.

Treats Them Right.

Trainmaster Brown of the I. C. & S. road has the hearty thanks of the Rob Roy theatre party for his courtesy to them last night in providing a car for their return home, thereby demonstrating that "he is a gentleman whom it is good to know," as one expresses it. Well, that's what Brown is all the time. He has lots to worry him, but he don't forget his patrons or the interests of his company.—Franklin Star.

M'MANIGAL TO BE A STAR WITNESS

Burns Informer Cuts Loose From Co-Defendants.

REFUSES TO SEE ATTORNEYS

When Approached by Job Harriman, Leading Counsel For Defense in Dynamite Case, Ortie McManigal Said He Wanted to Have Nothing to Do With Any Lawyer Connected With the Labor Movement.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 29.—"I do not want to see you or Judge Hilton or any other attorney connected with the labor movement. We will let things take their course."

With these words addressed to Attorney Job Harriman, Ortie McManigal, who has made several confessions of participating in dynamite plots and has implicated James B. McNamara and John J. McNamara in the dynamiting of the Times building here, indicated his attitude toward the men who are his co-defendants. It is evident that he is going to seek advice from Burns and be guided by what the detective tells him to do. That he will be the star witness for the prosecution is a foregone conclusion.

Widely published "confessions" sent out of Los Angeles were merely faked statements into which had been welded various circumstances relating to McManigal in Chicago. District Attorney Fredericks reiterated that not one word of what was taken down when McManigal made his confession Thursday had been given and that none would be. The confessions were constructed of admissions wormed from the detectives.

John H. Baker, a clerk in the employ of the Giant Powder company of Giant, Cal., where the explosive used to wreck the Times was bought last September, has arrived in Los Angeles and will take a look at James B. McNamara. Baker delivered the 500 pounds of dynamite to three men Sept. 23 last, and they took it away in a launch. It is charged that James McNamara, passing under the name of J. B. Bryce, signed for the delivery of the explosive, Baker taking his signature. Identification of McNamara as Bryce, therefore, will weld another link in the chain.

Clarence Darrow is expected here Monday. There seems to be no doubt that he is coming despite denials he is said to have given out in Chicago. Attorneys Job Harriman and O. N. Hilton say that he is to take part in the defense.

Detective Burns telegraphed to District Attorney Fredericks a denial that McManigal has been in his pay as an informer.

FIGHTING THE CASE

Tilden and Associates Don't Want to Go to Springfield.

Chicago, April 29.—Edward Tilden, head of the beef trust, W. C. Cummings and George M. Benedict were arrested on warrants charging them with contempt of the state senate in refusing to produce documents demanded by the committee in the investigation of the alleged bribery in connection with Lorimer's election to the United States senate.

Their attorneys immediately went before Judge Pettit and obtained a writ of habeas corpus, returnable immediately. The men were released under bonds of $5,000 each to appear before Judge Pettit Monday, when the final disposition will be made of the writs of habeas corpus.

DETECTIVES REWARDED

But Claim in Goebel Case Was Cut Nearly in Half.

Frankfort, Ky., April 29.—The state circuit court has awarded $5,500 to detectives who brought suit against the Goebel reward fund commission for the capture and conviction of Henry Youtsey and Jim Howard, charged with taking part in the assassination of Governor Goebel in January, 1900. The detectives are T. R. Griffith of Somerset, Ky., and William Harding and Des Armstrong of Louisville. Their petition requested an award of $10,000.

Found Dying Alongside Track.

Lafayette, Ind., April 29.—An unidentified man was found dying at the side of the Big Four tracks three miles east of the city. The man is a painter and the initials C. B. H. were found in his hat. His skull is fractured and he cannot live. He was on his way to Indianapolis and fell off a train.

FOREIGNERS BEWAIL ABSENCE OF BANKERS

Somerset County, Pa. Left Practically Broke.

Pittsburg, April 29.—Two owners of two leading foreign banks of Windber are missing, and three towns are completely tied up financially and on the verge of bankruptcy, so far as the foreign population is concerned. In Windber the streets are jammed with a weebegone but determined and sullen aggregation of broken men and women. They have lost all through having faith in Andrew Zerny, head of the Zerny chain of banks and steamship agencies, and M. F. Korlath, owner of the Magyar banks of Scalp Level, a suburb. It is estimated conservatively that $600,000 were on deposit in the two banks when their doors were closed. The victims are all poor, hardworking people. The victims are not all foreigners, many American citizens and business men at Windber and neighboring villages being among the depositors.

The bank wrecking started with the sudden disappearance and closing of the banks operated by Korlath. It is estimated that he got away with $70,000. Customers of Zerny's bank then started a run and about $11,000 was paid out. Depositors were then put off with a written promise that it would pay some time. Zerny's brother says he knows nothing of his whereabouts. Almost every hamlet in Somerset county in which there are foreign residents has been hard hit by the closing of the Zerny bank, and trouble of serious character is liable to break out at any moment.

Must Serve His Sentence.

Indianapolis, April 29.—The supreme court has affirmed the conviction of Clinton Bader of Jasper county, who was tried for presenting a false claim to the commissioners of Jasper county. Bader was the president of the Winamac Bridge company.

Posse Overtook Him.

Bluefield, W. Va., April 29.—News reached here that Thomas Chafin, murderer of Chief of Police Music and Mayor Hopkins of Matteawan, was shot to death by a pursuing posse near the Kentucky border.

NO BOOKS USED IN THIS SCHOOL

Missouri University Children Learn by Practice.

FIFTY PUPILS IN ATTENDANCE

All Are Sons and Daughters of Members of the Faculty—Gardening Takes Much of Their Time—To Give a Dinner at Graduation Time.

Fifty sons and daughters of professors at the University of Missouri, most of them from six to twelve years old, are receiving their elementary education according to the latest methods of teaching.

Instead of sending their children to the public schools in Columbia the professors send them to an elementary school of seven grades in connection with the school of education for experimentation and investigation in teaching.

Add Only When There's Need To.

These children, for instance, are not taught to add until there is occasion for them to add. When they play their motives are investigated and a course of study devised to suit their motives. Their lesson in addition and arithmetic may not come until after they have played games and the scores are to be computed. They learn something about grammar, spelling and similar things when they write about these games. Their history is presented to them by drama, and they learn about business, trade and civil government, not from books, but by visiting the Columbia stores and the municipal and county offices.

Little time is spent by the children with books. They are taught practical things—cooking, sewing and manual training. Not even the boys are excepted from the cooking. Just now much of their time is employed in the study of gardening and agriculture, and all of the information will come through actual work in sowing and planting.

To Give Parents a Dinner.

The children are making twelve model gardens and are doing all of the spading, raking and fertilizing themselves. When their time for graduation exercises comes there will be no declamations and recitations. Instead they are planning a big dinner, which will be attended by all of the pupils, teachers and parents. Everything served at the dinner will come from the gardens of the pupils.

Everything essential to successful gardening is being taught the children—rotation of crops, transplanting, thinning out, bleaching and "hilling up." It is the idea of the teachers to give instruction that will be useful to the boy or girl in the home life. So sure are they that the first attempt with school gardens will be a success that they are already planning for market days so that the children can sell all of the vegetables that are not used at the dinner.

CASE 22 YEARS IN COURTS.

$158,000 Suit Has Cost $448,500 to Date and End Is Not Yet.

Michael Donnelly of Albany, N. Y., who in 1889 sued his brother-in-law, P. J. McArdle, for a bill of sale involving $158,000, which suit has been in the courts ever since, has made public this table showing the cost and other features of it:

Period of litigation (years).....	22
Number of trials.....	7
Total number of trial days.....	87
Number of lawyers.....	93
Number of justices.....	40
Number of witnesses.....	29
Number of justices who have died.....	16
Number of lawyers who have died.....	13
Number of witnesses who have died.....	42
Donnelly's counsel fees.....	$163,500
McArdle's approximated expenses.....	200,000
Estimated cost to county, salaries, etc.....	65,000
Amount involved.....	158,000
Costs and disbursements.....	20,000

Mr. Donnelly and his brother-in-law were in the iron business when they went to law. Six times Mr. Donnelly's complaint was dismissed, but each time the higher courts reversed the judgment. Mr. Donnelly was advised that H. A. Gildersleeve, the referee, had reported that his share of what was left came to $41,000, with $20,000 for counsel fees. Mr. Donnelly says he will not accept it.

WANTS MRS. TAFT TO SIGN.

Lawyer Thinks Her Name Should Be Attached to Land Patents.

A lawyer in North Dakota has made the discovery that land patents are not valid because they are signed simply by the president. He has just written to the commissioner of the general land office returning a government patent with the reminder to the department that "by an oversight manifestly" Mrs. Taft did not join in signing the document.

The president seemed to enjoy the letter more than any other person in the official circle. As a matter of fact the president never signs a land patent in person. There is a woman clerk in the land office who at the personal designation of the president is empowered to sign the president's name to land warrants. The North Dakota lawyer is the first person to conceive the idea that it was requisite in a land patent that the wife of the president join in the instrument.

Exclusive Club Blackballs West Virginian.

Washington, April 29.—New members of congress who have applied for membership in the exclusive Metropolitan club are much annoyed because the board of governors seems to be exercising more than usual care in passing upon their eligibility.

They point to the blackballing of Senator Clarence W. Watson of West Virginia and the withdrawal of Representative Martin W. Littleton's name.

This is the first time of actual record when a United States senator has been refused admission to the club roll.

Suspected of Cruel Murder of Mrs. Turner at Lakewood, N. J.

Lakewood, N. J., April 29.—The body of Mrs. Charles N. Turner, who disappeared from her home here Wednesday, was found in a woods near town. Near by a club seven feet long, with the bark knocked off in places, told the story. The officials are hunting for a colored man whom they suspect. The body was found off the beaten track, and it was evident that there had been a struggle, from the condition of the body.

Anti-Gambling Meeting.

French Lick, Ind., April 29.—The meeting called for this place Sunday to organize an anti-gambling league, will be well attended by good citizens. It is not expected, however, that gambling will be stopped here soon as a result of the meeting. Sentiment does not favor eradication of the evil, and the authorities cannot be relied on to give assistance.

Had Alarm For Nothing.

Columbus, Ind., April 29.—Frank Griffith walked right in and turned around and walked right out again, when he discovered a blacksnake in the telephone booth at the First National bank. Griffith wanted to telephone his father that his elevator was on fire. After the blaze had been put out the snake was found to be of rubber.

COTTAGE WITH GAMBREL ROOF.

Design 334, by Glenn L. Saxton, Architect, Minneapolis, Minn.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW—FROM A PHOTOGRAPH.

FIRST FLOOR PLAN.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

A simple and pretty cottage of six rooms. The reception room and living room could be rearranged so as to form one large living room, with the fireplace at one end. The stairway leads to the second story from a small passageway so as to be accessible from the kitchen as well. The second story contains two chambers, a large bath and plenty of closets. The ceiling slope in the two chambers is taken off by the closets. This cottage is twenty-five feet square. There is a full basement. Cost to build, exclusive of heating and plumbing, $1,850.

By special arrangement with me the editor of this paper will furnish one complete set of plans and specifications of design No. 334 for $10.

UNCLE SAM DOES SOME SLEUTHING

Sensational Evidence Against a Detective Agency.

CHARGED WITH CONSPIRACY

At the Preliminary Hearing of the Members of the Perkins Detective Agency, Charged With Conspiring to Obtain Money From President Strong of the Erie, Postoffice Inspectors Show Their Hand.

Philadelphia, April 29.—Irregular edges of two black hand letters fitting perfectly in to corresponding edges of two sheets of paper, it was testified from a member of the agency, formed a dramatic climax to the hearing before United States Commissioner Craig of Charles Franklin, manager of the Philadelphia office of the Perkins detective agency, charged with conspiracy to obtain money for the agency by sending black hand letters to Charles H. Strong, president of the Pittsburgh & Erie railroad. For the first time since the arrest, on April 13 of Gilbert Perkins, head of the agency, his son Walter, manager of the Indianapolis office, and Franklin, in this city, the government showed its hand at this hearing.

Testimony to show that the three conspired to get employment for the agency in ferretting out the writer of black hand letters to the railroad president, was given by several postal inspectors. According to the inspectors the Perkins agency sent two letters, the first threatening to blow up Strong's family mausoleum at Erie, Pa., unless $50,000 was deposited in a certain place, and the second threatening Strong and his wife with death unless the demand was complied with. The letters were irregularly torn on the edges.

President Strong testified that Gilbert Perkins assured him that the agency would make an arrest and that "the torn pieces of these black hand letters would be found on the person apprehended."

Postal Inspector James M. Woltz of Parkersville, W. Va., testified that when he arrested the elder Perkins he found on him a sealed envelope bearing the letterhead of the Reed House, at Erie, Pa. In this envelope he swore were the sheets of torn paper that fitted into the jagged edges of the black hand letters which they produced at the hearing.

Inspector James B. Cortelyou of this city produced four letters, two written in pencil and two with pen and ink. They were written by Franklin, he said, at his dictation after Franklin had been arrested. In text they were the same as the black hand letter received by Mr. Strong.

After qualifying as a handwriting expert, William G. Pengell of Columbus, O., testified that in his opinion the man who wrote them was the writer of the original black hand letters.

AT IT AGAIN

Big Incendiary Blaze in the Kentucky Tobacco District.

Brandenburg, Ky., April 29.—Night riders are charged with burning the tobacco barn of George Meador, near Brandenburg. About 20,000 pounds of tobacco were destroyed. The loss is estimated at $25,000. Meador and other farmers recently received letters warning them to destroy their tobacco beds, several matches being attached to each of the letters. The incendiaries drove all of the stock out of the barn before firing it.

STARTLED SPECTATORS

Aviator Ward Battles With Storm Five Thousand Feet in Air.

Nashville, Tenn., April 29.—Battling with a storm 5,000 feet above the earth, Aviator James J. Ward startled the spectators at the aviation meet here when he throttled his engine, sending a trail of smoke like a meteor from the rear of his machine. Ward had just reappeared from out a dense wind cloud when the scene occurred and the onlookers thought the wind and rain had caused an ignition.

The first printed English version of the legend of Lohengrin sold for $21,000 in the Hoe library sale.

SENATOR KERN SAYS THAT BOOM IS A JOKE

Being for Marshall, He Is Not a Candidate.

Indianapolis, April 29.—Senator John W. Kern arrived home from Washington yesterday and it took him only a few seconds to declare the movement to nominate him for president to be a joke. Before he left the train at the union station his attention was called to the organization in this city of the Kern Presidential club, and he was asked what he knew about it.

"I have treated this whole matter as a joke from the start, and I shall continue to treat it as such," he said. "I am not a candidate for president. I am for Governor Marshall and have been for him all along, and shall continue to be for him. The Democrats of Indiana are solidly for Marshall. This will be my attitude throughout."

A NEW ELEMENT

Has Been Introduced Into the Mexican Peace Negotiations.

El Paso, Tex., April 29.—There is some gloom in the insurrecto camp, mingled with elation. The gloom comes from the deviltry the insurrectos fear through the return to Mexico of Bernardo Reyes and an interview given out at New Orleans by Dr. Vasquez Gomez in which he appears not to give such hearty accord to peace negotiations. The elation is over the actual appointment in Mexico of a peace commissioner for Mexico to deal with the insurrectos here. Francisco Carbajal, judge of the supreme court of Mexico, is the man named as commissioner. "Entirely satisfactory," said Madero, when he heard of the appointment.

After he had read the statement of Dr. Vasquez Gomez, Madero continued: "I agree with Dr. Gomez that no peace treaty is possible which does not give full assurance of sincerity and liberty to all of the people of Mexico."

Reyes Is on His Way.

Paris, April 29.—General Bernardo Reyes, Mexican ex-minister of war, has left here for London on his way back to Mexico.

NINE FIRE VICTIMS

Widow's Home Destroyed and All Inmates Save Two Perish.

Roanoke, Va., April 29.—The ninth victim was added to the list of those who perished in the fire which almost completely wiped out the family of Mrs. J. H. Nunn, whose home was burned here early Friday when William Nunn, twenty-two years old, died in a hospital last night.

The family consisted of Mrs. Nunn and ten children. An attempt was made to arouse them. Only three could be awakened and these escaped by leaping from the second floor windows. The other members of the family except one son, Mortimer, who died in the arms of a fireman, were burned to death.

Was He the Missing Wheelock?

Boston, April 29.—It is the belief of T. J. Falvey, president of the Massachusetts Bonding company, as well as that of many of the employees, that Oscar Creighton, who was recently killed by a band of Mexican rebels along the Texas border, is, or was, Oscar M. Wheelock, auditor of the company, who absconded about two years ago, leaving a shortage in his accounts of $9,200. President Falvey has positively identified a picture of "Creighton" as Wheelock, and a number of the company's clerks did likewise.

Youthful Robber Confesses.

Mount Vernon, Ill., April 29.—Martin Kidd, aged 16, is under arrest here on a charge of robbing the Southern Express company at Cullman, Ala., of $1,450. According to the police he confessed he worked the combination of the office safe at two different times.

WIPED OUT BY LEGALIZING ACT

"Constructive Charges" Not Collectible.

SO THE TRUSTEES MAINTAIN

Prosecutors Over the State Are Seeking Ruling From the Attorney General on Legalizing Acts of the General Assembly Relating to Reports Made by Board of Accounts as to Township Trustees.

Indianapolis, April 29.—Prosecuting attorneys who received the cases filed by the attorney general on reports made by the state board of accounts concerning the official records of former township trustees and other public officers held accountable for various sums, seek a ruling from the attorney general on the various legalizing acts of the recent general assembly concerning the effects of such acts on the sums charged back to the former officers.

It is believed by cursory study of the legalizing acts that most of the so-called "constructive charges" made by the state board of accounts have been wiped out by the acts. The "constructive charges" were charges made by examiners where moneys had been expended contrary to the letter of the law, but for which expenditures the corporations received full value in return. Under the law the examiners held such expenditures should be reported and made a charge against the officers, and in view of the fact that the corporations had received full value the charges were placed in a class to themselves.

The act which is thought to have the widest effect in legalizing the "constructive charges," is found on Page 693 of the new volume of acts, entitled "An act entitled an act for the relief of township trustees in certain cases, and declaring an emergency." It was approved by the governor March 7. The language of this act is so broad, it is held that it will be impossible to collect by court action any of the moneys charged by the state board as "constructive charges."

Trustees over the state are saying that under this act they are entitled to immunity from the "constructive charges," and the prosecutors are hesitating about going into court to collect such charges.

TAKING HIS TIME

Prosecutor Baker Declines to Rush Kidnapping Charge.

Indianapolis, April 29.—Public Prosecutor Frank P. Baker has given the labor unions to understand that there would be no indictments in the alleged kidnapping cases unless both the law and the facts justified them. He said that the steps that have been taken by the grand jury in the investigation of matter in connection with J. J. McNamara's arrest had not been authorized by him and that he would sign no indictments of any kind until he could superintend the investigation himself and know what the testimony is. This statement was brought out apparently by attempts to rush witnesses before the grand jury in the kidnapping cases and if possible get the subject before that body before the prosecutor had studied the law and the facts and reached a conclusion as to whether indictments would lie at all in the cases.

Prosecutor Baker, two days ago, declared the proceedings before the police judge illegal and many lawyers agree with him, but he questions if the parties to them—the police and Detective Burns and others—are amenable to any law for their action.

PAYS $50,000 FOR THE FAMOUS GUTENBERG BIBLE

Henry E. Huntington the Purchaser at Highest Price Ever Paid For a Book.

The famous Gutenberg or "forty-two line Latin Bible" broke the world's record at the Robert Hoe library sale in New York, bringing the extraordinary price of $50,000. This is double the amount paid for the Mainz psalter of 1459, which brought $24,750 at the Sir John Thorold library sale in London in 1884.

There were bidders from the English metropolis, from Paris, Frankfurt-on-Main and Munich, and nearly all the larger cities of America were represented. The first bid was $10,000, and it came from George D. Smith, acting for Henry E. Huntington, a nephew of the late Collis P. Huntington. Following him came substantial raises from Dr. Rosenberg of Philadelphia, Dodd & Livingston, Bernard Quaritch of London and Joseph Widener, who was representing P. A. B. Widener of Philadelphia.

The bids were $1,000 at a time. Quaritch seemed determined to capture the prize and take it back to London, but after he bid $30,000 he stopped. The contest from that time on was between Mr. Widener and Mr. Smith. The price quickly went up to $35,000, then to $40,000, without a sign of quitting on the part of either. When Mr. Smith bid $48,000 Mr. Widener said $49,000 promptly, and Mr. Smith made it $50,000, and amid a burst of general applause the treasure was knocked down to him.

Mr. Huntington by this purchase succeeds J. Pierpont Morgan as the owner of the costliest book in the world.

The Bible is on vellum, and there are said to be only seven copies in existence. It and the copy owned by Mr. Morgan are the only ones in America.

Next to the Gutenberg Bible the highest price of the sale was "The Book of St. Albans," a fine folio copy of the famous old book on angling and hunting, written by Juliana Berners, the prioress, and issued by an unknown printer at St. Albans, England, in 1486. This also was obtained by Mr. Huntington for $12,000, a new record price for this book. It is one of only two perfect copies, the other one being in the John Rylands library of Manchester, England.

PITIES WEALTHY BOYS.

They Miss the Real Blood Training of Self Making, Says Packer.

"My boys are to inherit wealth, but they will be the sadder for it. They are missing the real blood training of self making."

Samuel W. Allerton of Chicago, a packer, economist and champion of woman suffrage, is sorry that his sons are not to have the hard knocks in climbing to fortune which he suffered. Talking on the benefit of battling with the world, he said:

"The boy who is up against making his own way is far the most self-reliant. The scions of the wealthy are satisfied for the most part to be nonentities."

"If every man and woman in the world does his and her duty every child will be taught to save. They will thus be taught to build character and credit. If the wealthy do their duty by their servants they will give them every opportunity to save. My wife and I have taught our servants to save. They all have from $2,000 to $5,000 invested in stock which pays 6 per cent."

HER FLESH AS BAIT.

Woman Resorts to Heroic Means to Obtain Food For Children.

Fish dealers confirm a story that an Indian woman living on a small island north of Vancouver, B. C., cut a piece of flesh from her body in an effort to procure food for her children when they were starving.

The woman and children were in desperate straits. The last scrap of food had been eaten the day before, and there was no game, although the woman searched until her strength gave out.

In this condition she cut a strip of flesh from her body. This flesh was used as bait to catch fish and thus sustained life until aid arrived.

WATER AS ANAESTHETIC.

Being Used Successfully at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Lukewarm water is now being used as an anaesthetic in most of the operations for appendicitis at Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore.

In an operation for appendicitis, said one of the surgeons, all that is necessary is to inject lukewarm water in sufficient quantities under the skin in the vicinity of the part operated on.

"We have obtained great results through the use of water and in most cases would rather use it than a drug."

While the operation is in progress the patient is said to feel no pain and

INFORMATION

Regarding the Spraying of Orchards at This Time.

F. H. Simpson, of Flora, Illinois, writes the Republican as follows regarding the spraying of orchards at this time:

The bloom on most varieties of apples will be out too far to spray by the last of this week, and orchardists should not do any more spraying until the petals have fallen. As soon as the bloom drops they will want to commence spraying with two gallons of Lime-Sulphur solution and two pounds of Arsenate of Lead to fifty gallons of water. This is the important spraying for the Codling moth, or apple worm, and great care should be used to get it applied thoroughly, the main point being to get the spray into the bloom ends of the small apples. It is a well known fact that from 80 to 90 per cent. of the Codling moths enter the small apples at the blossom ends, and by getting the spray into the blossom ends before they close up you have a store of poison laid by as a protection against the future work of this pest. Thorough work with arsenate of lead and lime-sulphur after the blossom drops and before the Calyx end closes up will guarantee orchardists apples that are free of worms, and at the same time protect the foliage against other leaf eating insects and apple scab.

I hope that a few of your orchardists will make up their minds to do their work very thoroughly and am sure if this is the case that you will have demonstration orchards in your section that will show beyond any question the value of spraying in growing apples or any other fruit.

All the growers that have not sprayed can take advantage of the above spraying as the next two weeks are most important. Whilst they will not get the best results, they will get enough to show them what can be accomplished by spraying.

BLACK LOCUSTS.

Planted On the Entire 100 Acre Allen Farm.

The Louis Allen farm near Zelma in Lawrence county, just over the Jackson county line, was bought recently by an eastern man who is planting black locusts on the entire 100 acres.

The Bedford Democrat says: "Black locust is supposed to make the best fence posts that can be had and is of comparatively rapid growth. Black locust would also make fine railroad ties if permitted to grow to sufficient size. The gentleman who now owns the Allen farm is planting 50,000 black locust sprouts on the place, planting them six feet apart. This is supposed to be close enough together to make them grow tall and straight, and it is estimated that within ten years the trees will be large enough for posts, allowing two posts to the tree. As posts of this kind are worth about twenty-five cents apiece, or more, it can be figured up that at the end of ten years the farm will be worth a pile of money."

Rev. L. L. Pickett of Kentucky, the Prohibition and temperance orator, will speak at Freetown tonight, at Cortland Sunday morning, at Seymour Sunday afternoon, at Redington Sunday night and at Crothersville Monday night.

FACTS WORTH KNOWING,

Concerning Nature's Way to Health.

This is an age of progress in the world of medicine as well as in arts and science. Old customs, old habits, old modes of life are giving way to new to keep pace with the march of progress.

Men of science are no longer hesitating to denounce the false theories of the past. Inventor, Edison, the electrical "wizard," among other things, says:

"Medicine is played out. The doctor of the future will give no medicine, but will instruct his patient in the care of the human frame, in diet, and in the cause and prevention of disease."

These are strong words, and in the main an endorsement of osteopathy. Edison's position is one worthy of investigation by all seekers of health.

That the people are doing their own thinking now more than ever before is self evident. In no age has non-medical methods of treatment been so prominent. Even physicians themselves are quietly abandoning the use of drug remedies.

The old method of bleeding and purging, depleting the sick, keeping them in the dark with but little food and less water, filling their already weakened systems with large doses of calomel, antimony and arsenic, have gone forever.

It has been demonstrated that a thing may be both new and true. A description of an automobile would have shocked the wise men of long ago. Why not improve upon old methods of healing as well as upon old ways of locomotion?

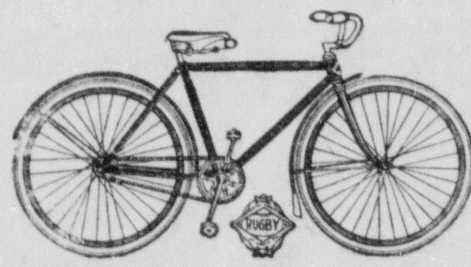

Overwhelming proof prevails that osteopathy cures where other methods fail. It has been tested by all classes of people and tried in untold numbers of cases until its place in the realm of scientific therapeutics is abundantly proven to be superior to old methods.

This is a personal message to you, sick friend. Many sick people would get well if they only knew the osteopathic way, which is the surer and better way, yet it is unknown to many and there can be no reason for hesitating to tell others about it. It is not claimed to be a cure-all, yet its scope and range cannot be measured by the failures of other schools for it is restoring stubborn, chronic cases that they have abandoned.

Suppose you look into the merits of osteopathy here in Seymour. A trial will convince that most of the common ills of life are seen with a new understanding, treated accordingly, invariably cured or greatly benefited, evidencing that the osteopaths are finding the keys and opening the seals and coming into possession of the glorious heritage to mankind—health, and through Nature's own methods.

COLLEGE ROWING
PLANS FOR 1911

Pennsylvania Looms Up Strong
For Poughkeepsie Race.

CORNELL STRIKES A SNAG.

Wholesale Defection Has Left Coach Courtney With Only Two Men of 1910 Boat—Columbia Has Lost Heavily, and So Have Badgers.

With a perceptible tightening of training the college oarsmen have moved into the second stage of their preparation. The more practicable work on the water has been put in motion at all of the big universities where rowing is a varsity sport. Already Cornell, Pennsylvania, Columbia, Syracuse and Wisconsin have been out on the water for practice.

Although gloomy enough in the depths of winter, the prospects for the annual regatta at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., are better this year than usual, and without a doubt the crews will probably be more evenly matched than is usually the case. Graduation has deprived several crews of their most valuable men, and then again conditions have arisen like that at Cornell, where an apparently veteran crew has been forced to give up rowing for one reason or another, leaving the less experienced men to carry on the work. Columbia lost most heavily by graduation, as four of the Blue and White varsity eight received their degrees and the two others have quit.

Cornell lost not a single man by graduation, but a wholesale defection has left Courtney with only two men of the eight who rowed a year ago. The six men who have dropped out are all seniors and were members of the 1908 Cornell freshman crew which was transformed into the varsity eight of 1909. The sudden loss of one crew does not seem to worry Courtney very much, however, and he has boated another eight, made up mostly of last year's freshman squad. Wisconsin lost half its crew by graduation, but the remaining four are still in college and will be a nucleus for the 1911 eight.

Pennsylvania and Syracuse have been the most fortunate so far as being able to hold on to their men is concerned. They have lost only one man apiece, and the Quakers in particular are expecting great things of the crew that fought so splendidly at Poughkeepsie last June. At Syracuse the situation has not been any too rosy, however, for a deficit in the athletic association of something more than $6,000 caused the suspension of the crew for several months, and although Coach Ten Eyck has received permission to go ahead the debt has not altogether been paid off.

There is good material at Princeton. The Tigers started outdoor work with fifty enthusiastic candidates. There are three varsity boats and a freshman's eight. The only regatta sanctioned by the faculty is the Yale-Cornell-Princeton race, to be held on Carnegie lake, May 19.

Harvard's outdoor work is very satisfactory. After several drills the men showed surprisingly clean blade work. The Harvard varsity crew have at least one date for a race settled on their spring schedule, that with Cornell on May 27 on Lake Cayuga, at Ithaca. With the Cornell race at that time and the possibilities for the Yale race at about the same time in June, the Crimson oarsmen will be obliged to row a more crowded schedule than Wray would like to have, giving him only a month between the two important races to get the crew in shape for the event on the Thames.

At New Haven Yale is preparing very quietly. There are several of last year's crew left, and recent trials prove the Blue will be as strong as if not stronger than last season.

FIREPROOF SMOKEHOUSE.

Combined With Storeroom, but the Latter May Be Omitted.

The Country Gentleman, from which these cuts and this article are reproduced, gives the following directions for the erection of a fireproof smokehouse and storeroom combined which has given satisfaction:

The building is divided into two sections. That facing the dwelling and situated at the right end in the diagram given herewith, being incased in stone walls and closed with dark shutters when desired, answers a useful purpose for keeping fruit, fresh meat and provisions generally.

The left hand half of the building is occupied with the smokehouse. The diagram shows the position of the different parts. The ash pit, surrounded by stone walls and a layer of stone beneath, laid in water lime mortar and securely coated with the same, keeps the ashes dry, and no water can enter. The ash pit is entered by an iron door. Over it is a brick arch containing several holes the size of a half brick, through which the smoke passes into the smoke apartment above, which is entered by the outside door on the left end of the building by the assistance of a stepladder. This smoke room is 6 by 10 feet in the clear. The ventilating window at the end and the ventilating chimney at the top are both opened when the hams are smoking and closed shut when the operation is completed. The top of the arch forms the floor of the smoke room.

A large number of hams may be placed in this room by the following arrangement: Pieces of hardwood plank eight inches wide and long enough to reach across the room rest on a ledge or projection from the walls on each side. These pieces of plank have hooks driven in on both edges far enough apart to receive the hams, so that a row may be hung on each side. When full each is pushed along to one side and another filled, and so on till all are in their places. The ventilators above are then opened, and smoke is started on the heap of ashes below. For this purpose coals are used or unseasoned maple or body hickory. The smoking should be slow. By the time the smoke has passed up through the openings in the arch it has become cold and cannot heat the hams. Ten or twelve days will usually be enough for the completion of the operation, when the ventilators at the end and in the chimney above are closely shut. The hams being now kept perfectly dark and thoroughly excluded from the air outside, will keep in good condition. Flies will do no injury through the summer with a small fire started once a month and with the upper ventilator partly open at the time. This obviates the common and troublesome task of incasing the hams in muslin, whitewashing them or packing them in oats or ashes.

It is obvious that the apartment used as a storeroom may be omitted and the smokehouse built alone. Double brick, hollow walls might be even better than stone. The rafters should be ten inches wide, strongly lathed, plastered and filled with sawdust to keep the room cool.

Farmers are entitled to use about a third of the country's credit. Whatever amount of credit they use for intelligent road improvement will prove a good investment. — Saturday Evening Post.

Shropshires Good For Mutton.

More Shropshires are fed and marketed in England than any other two breeds. In this country there are over 4,000 breeders on the membership roll and more than 328,000 animals recorded. The reason the breed is popular is because these sheep give better returns for money invested than any other of the mutton breeds.

Early Variety of Corn.

Indian Squaw corn is greatly relished by stock in some localities. It is an early variety and may be planted for forage. It is said to mature in eighty-five days under favorable conditions. It makes a fair ear when allowed to mature.

MR. SPLICER'S
ASSISTANT.

There was once a gentleman who sold umbrellas. He had a little umbrella shop, in the window of which was a tremendous swirl made entirely of umbrellas with their points together in the center and their handles sticking out into space. He also sold umbrella stands, and his name was Mr. Splicer. He went to his shop very early in the morning, and he left very late at night, and when he wasn't selling umbrellas he was trying to sell umbrellas. He had an assistant who mended umbrellas, and when he wasn't mending umbrellas he was trying to mend umbrellas.

Every morning at breakfast Mr. Splicer would read the weather report. And as soon as he reached his shop he would go to the windows and say, "What a nice rainy day!" or "What a dismal sunshiny day!" as the case might be.

Mr. Splicer had a daughter who always looked lovely or was trying to look lovely. And he had a wife who looked happy and contented or else was trying to look happy and contented, and she was the nicest one of the family, although they were all rather nice as families go.

"I'LL HAVE TO GO HOME AND STAY IN DOORS."

Sometimes the lovely daughter would drop in at her father's shop, and if she were wishing for a clear day and it was raining she would exclaim: "What a dreary day! I'll have to go home and stay indoors!"

But one morning the lovely daughter said at breakfast: "Oh, how glad I am! We are going to have a sunny day, and I can go to the picnic and wear my best new dress!"

To which Mr. Splicer answered, "I shall not sell more than two umbrellas today."

"But, father," the lovely daughter replied, "if I do not go to picnics, but merely try to go to picnics, I would have no use for the best new dresses."

And Mr. Splicer pondered awhile over that and said: "This is a complicated world. I wish to buy my daughter nice new dresses to wear to picnics, and I cannot buy her nice new dresses if it is sunny, and she cannot go to picnics if it rains."

"Father is always saying clever things," said Miss Splicer.

"Or trying to solve difficulties," said Mrs. Splicer, who was always pleasant.

And then Mr. Splicer went off to the umbrella shop, and Miss Splicer went to the picnic.

And in the course of the morning an old lady came into the umbrella shop and said: "Good morning, Mr. Splicer. Do you sell sunshades?"

And Mr. Splicer said: "Why, no; I've never sold sunshades. I've never even tried to sell sunshades."

"Well," said the old lady, "if I leave the order will you try to make a sunshade for me?"

"What color sunshade?" said Mr. Splicer, who was a cautious man.

"Well, suppose we say a pink sunshade," said the old lady. "I think I'll have a pink sunshade."

"A pink sunshade," said Mr. Splicer.

"Why, yes; I think I could undertake to make a pink sunshade if you should leave an order for one."

"Very well," said the old lady. "I'll come for it on Wednesday, if you'll please remember. Kindly have it ready then."

And when she had gone Mr. Splicer said to his assistant, "Do you think you could make a pink sunshade?"

"I could try to make a pink sunshade," said the assistant.

"You're a very trying person," said Mr. Splicer, "but go ahead and try."

So the assistant tried and in course of time produced a pink sunshade. He was a trusting assistant and always hoped for the best when he worked on anything.

And when Mr. Splicer saw the sunshade he said, "You are a very helpful helper."

"You called me trying last week," said the assistant.

"Last week you were trying," said Mr. Splicer, "and you were trusting. Now you are tried and trusted. Make me another pink sunshade."

And that is how it happened that Mr. Splicer built up a large and prosperous business in sunshades, so that sunny and rainy days were equally agreeable to him. Thus the family always were happy, and the clever assistant eventually fell in love with Miss Splicer and spent most of his time writing poetry, or trying to write poetry.—St. Nicholas.

JEPHTHAH'S VOW.

Text, "And Jephthah vowed a vow unto Jehovah."—Judg. xi, 30.

It's a thrillingly dramatic story this, unrivaled in tragic power by anything in human literature. This Jewish hall of fame hero was an illegitimate son, cursed for a sin not his own. Like many such, Jephthah develops rare daring and force of character. Crowded out of his home, he becomes an outlaw, yet a patriot, loving the country that did not love him. In a national emergency, in the face of a great enemy, they call the exile home. And the outlaw of the desert shows himself a born leader, great soldier, skilled diplomat. He's one of those courageous men who in time of national panic become popular heroes. War's a gigantic gamble at best, with human lives and national destinies at stake. There's an element of chance as well as heavy battalions. Rain, muddy roads, torrents sweeping away pontoons, upset all calculations of strategy. Soldiers become superstitious. Vows are registered. Covenants made with the Almighty. Jephthah makes one—that which first crosses his door when he comes home victorious shall be a burnt offering.

The warrior returns in triumph. A nation cheers. Then back home to his own hearthstone. But the vow—the almost forgotten vow! Out from his door comes an exquisite piece of womanhood to greet him. Horror, amazement, self reproach, sit on his face—it's his only child, his noble minded daughter, the victim for his triumph, the bride of death! Oh, that vow! "Bad promises are better broken," says the proverb. What should the stern warrior do? "Hedge?" Lead out an ox garlanded? And the girl—what of her? Should she rebel? God of nations, send us such patriots! In language heroic she bids him perform his vow. A soldier's word is his honor. She's a soldier's daughter. What's her life more than another's as a part of a price in a great cause? This Jewish Joan of Arc feels while life is precious truth is more so.

The Price of Victory.

All great service demands sacrifice. Great souls seem to recognize that. "If thou wilt drive Lee from the soil of Pennsylvania I will free the slaves," vows the man of sorrow on his knees at the White House. Antietam is the answer. No great cause flourishes till its soil is wet with blood. The religious soldier deals staggering blows. A Cromwell, a Gordon, a Robert E. Lee, makes a terrible antagonist. His vow is with God. His cause, God's cause. There's something awfully splendid in the man who vows to God and cannot go back, even though his heart breaks and his life is wrecked. He's willing to buy his country's good at a terrible price. I know commentators get nervous when they reach this story. I know their explanations and respect them. But how do we know that the sacrifice was not acceptable to God? If he demanded the cross from Christ, why not a broken heart from Jephthah? Of John the Baptist he asks death in the dungeon at Machaerus, of Paul martyrdom in the Mamertine prison at Rome, of the Nazarene crucifixion on Golgotha. Of his saints he has demanded prison torture, lives of insult and physical agony; the thumb screw, rack, fagot and arena were their part. Their greatest attainments were made by awful sacrifice. "In the world ye shall have tribulations," they are assured. I do not know but that the defect in modern religion is that it is too cheap; that it asks no vows, no sacrifice. We ask gifts of God and give nothing in return. To go to a luxurious church on a beautiful Sunday morning, when the sun is shining, dressed in our best, bow our heads to be observed and admired of all, listen to a trained choir and an eloquent minister, drop our smallest coin on the plate—this is called "service!" He that sitteth in the heavens laughs. A true religion not only gives all, but demands all. Who knows but that semibarbaric Jephthah had his groping hand on a great truth?

Pay Your Vows.

Ever make promises to God? Certainly you have. When you were sick, thought you were going to die, you promised God if he would spare you you'd give time, money and service for him. Says Mr. Richman, "If God pulls me through this time I'll give half my fortune to him." He's better. Preacher reminds him of his vow. Then he hedges. "Half? That's too much. Must make allowance for sick man's raving." "Fourth? Why, no man ever gave that much." "Fifth, tenth, hundredth part?"—a different arithmetic has to be used. "I'll tell you, preacher: I've a deal on now. If it comes out as I hope I'll pony up! The 'deal' goes. Brilliant stroke. He made a small fortune. The check comes—for $5! Shame! Give God nagrudgingly your costliest. Remember that sickbed, brother? Yes, you're better now; cheeks rosy, eyes bright, limbs are strong. But, say, how about that vow? "Oh I'm going to come to church before long. Sure! Think I'm not a man of my word?" But the vow's never paid, or only in part. "What's the very least I must do to have religious respectability here and surety of many mansions hereafter?" Listen! Think you're mocking God? What you withhold from God in one way the devil gets in another. And—there's another day coming! Pay thy vows!

The Toltecs Not the First Americans.

Mexico City, April 28.—Dr. Edward Seler of Berlin, Germany, a noted archeologist, who has been in Mexico for some time conducting researches into ancient civilizations, confirms the report that was recently made by Prof. William Niven of this city of the discovery of the buried ruins of a great city in the upper end of the valley of Mexico. Dr. Seler says that the race of people who built and inhabited the ancient city belonged to an unknown civilization that far antedated the Toltecs. The tops of the large buildings are eighteen feet beneath the present bed of the valley. Many wonderful and strange relics, different from anything heretofore discovered, have already been taken from the ruins.

PRICES GOING UP

New Law Boosts Rates on Indiana
Schoolbooks.

Indianapolis, April 28.—New geographies and histories for the public schools of Indiana will cost more than the ones now in use. Eleven publishing companies submitted bids to the state board of education ranging from 75 cents to $1.05 for geographies and from 65 cents to 75 cents for histories. The board set May 15 as the date for awarding the contracts and the bidders were asked to submit briefs outlining the merits of their books.

The increased prices are explained by the law, which requires schoolbook publishers to pay dealers a commission of 15 per cent. Only a 5 per cent commission was required when the contracts were awarded for the Frye geography and Montgomery histories, which have been in use for years.

More Option Elections.

Indianapolis, April 28.—Thursday's local option elections resulted in victories for the dries in one township in Franklin county, three in Jackson, one in Whitley and three in White, while the wets won one in the latter county, the township in which Reynolds is located.

A Lady of Pizarro Tells Story of Awful Suffering That Cardui
Finally Relieved.

Pizarro, Va.—"I suffered for several years," writes Mrs. Dorna A. Smith, "with that awful backache and the bearing down sensations, so fully described in your book."

"I tried doctors and other medicines and found little relief, until I was induced to try Wine of Cardui, when I found instant relief and today I can heartily recommend Cardui to all suffering women and think there is no other as good."

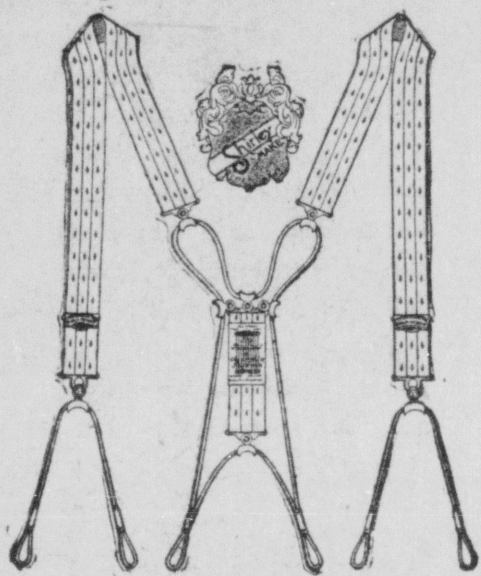

In some instances, Cardui gives instant relief; in others, it may take a little time. But in all cases of female trouble Cardui can be depended on to be of benefit, as it is a specific remedy for women and acts in a curative way on the womanly organs.

As a general tonic for women, to build up your strength, improve your appetite, bring back rosy cheeks and make you look and feel young and happy, nothing you can find will do so much for you as Cardui.

Your druggist has it.

CHAPTER XXI.

EXCEPT that for many hours a day I sat in a gloomy twilight, I was well treated. I was well fed and was allowed to walk for a certain time each day upon the ramparts—well guarded, of course.

I had hoped to catch a glimpse of Daria during my daily constitutional, but the hope was not fulfilled. I think it is possible that Costa might have so arranged matters as to grant me this request had I asked him, but I dared not do so. Her beauty might save her. My love might condemn her. So I led Costa to believe that she was no more to me than any other woman.

In my lonely hours I was not idle. I examined my cell, its floors and its walls and the locked trap in the corner. The walls and the floor were hopeless. Such solid masonry would yield but slowly to a company of men with all appliances at hand. But the trap attracted me. It was a way out I knew, even if it were only dead men who took it. I wonder how often and how long I have stood gazing at the trap, fascinated by the thoughts it gave rise to.

I lost count of time. Days and nights passed, and I knew that I had been a prisoner for a long while. An imaginative man might have hoped that he had been forgotten. I knew my enemies too well to think so, and Costa was constantly advising me regarding the future. He seemed to enjoy sitting in my cell, and if his conversation was not of the most consoling kind it helped to pass some weary hours. I have never been able to make up my mind what the Spaniard's true feelings toward me were, whether he had some sort of respect for me or whether it delighted him to speak of the grewsome tortures which were in store for me.

He came one evening late—later than was his wont—and with him came O'Ryan. My quondam friend had evidently recovered, for he walked vigorously, and his arm looked capable of wielding a good sword again.

"It is tomorrow," said Costa, fixing the torch in the ring in the wall.

"What is tomorrow?"
"Your trial. We are just in Yadasara. We give a man a trial—generally. It seems to me a useless waste of time. It comes to the same thing in the end."

I thought this quite probable.
"Shall I be allowed to speak?" I asked.

"Oh, yes, but it would be well to have a care what you say, eh, captain?"

Thus directly appealed to, O'Ryan, who had stood silently with folded arms, burst out laughing.

"I might say too much to please that rascally companion of yours, is that it?" I asked Costa, nodding contemptuously toward O'Ryan.

"Rascal!" exclaimed the Irishman excitedly.
"Steady," Costa interposed. "You will doubtless have the pleasure of witnessing your enemy's discomfiture, but it is not for you to administer the punishment."

The city turned out to see me on the morrow when I was taken from the fortress to the palace. The king was surrounded by his court and was talking and laughing with those about him. A callous assembly it was to try a man for his life! At a little distance from me stood Daria, very pale and very beautiful. Had my courage faltered for a moment the sight of her, firm, resolute and fearless, would have filled me with new strength. To her I bowed; to the king I made no obeisance. Near the king sat Count Vasca and next to the count Lady Aldrida. The count was pale—perhaps by reason of his recent wounds. Lady Aldrida looked as if she proceedings thoroughly amused her. How difficult some Christian laws are to obey! How could I help hating this woman and this man?

"I AM NO TRAITOR."

Then the smiles went from the king's face, and those around him were silent.

"Madame," he said, turning to Daria, "there is little need for us to tell you of what you are accused. In Drussenland there cannot be two rulers. It has pleased you to set yourself up against your rightful king and with the help of traitors to their king and their country to defy us for this long season, bringing war where peace should be. At your door lie in heaps the men who have fallen in defense of their country, and their blood cries to us to be avenged. Are there any words that can say aught in your defense? If so, speak them. This court shall judge you, not we, and truly your fair face should find many a one to deal out lenient judgment."

"I am no traitor."

The words came firm and clear, no suspicion of trembling in her voice. She was as much a queen now as when I had first seen her, surrounded by her knights.

"I stand here princess of Drussenland," she said. "The fortune of war places me here standing, while the real traitor remains seated in my presence. You, who call yourself the king, are no king, nor are you established here in Yadasara by the will of true Drussenlanders. You are king only by the help of these paid foreigners, whose very names and country are unknown to you. For the judgment of your court I care nothing."

"We shall find means to subdue that bold spirit within you, madame," said the king.

"To kill it, not to subdue it," she answered.

"So have many spoken. Words come easily. But let us argue a little, madame. In your accusations be just. We are not all foreigners. Am I not a Drussenlander?"

"One I should have delighted to honor had you been true to your country and your sovereign," was the answer.

I expected to see the king become savage, but he astonished me by laughing heartily. There was something of our own Charles II. about this monarch. If an answer were ready enough he could appreciate it, even if it were against himself.

"See what we have lost. By being a king we forego the happiness of being honored by a queen. What will you say then, madame, of Count Vasca? Surely he is a true Drussenlander since he is your kinsman?"

"There are no words fitting. You and your assumption of majesty I can understand. You have fought me face to face, a determined struggle in which you have won. It was treachery, indeed, but it was treachery open to the sun. If treachery can be honest, yours was. But for the man who hides his treachery behind a smile, who works in secret to destroy those he professes to honor; for the false friend, the coward who dare not be an open enemy, there are no words. Gather all the scoundrels there are in Drussenland together, take from each one the meanest trait he has, and of these traits build you up a man. Even then shall you have a man I would rather claim kindred with than with Count Vasca."

"It seems you are a dangerous friend," said the king, turning to him. "Your majesty has not found me so."
"True. You see, madame, it is well sometimes to use similar weapons to those used by an adversary. If your enemy sends a spy we, too, must do the same or our ignorance may lose us the day. Count Vasca has received harsh language from your lips. What have you to say to your knight there? True, he was faithful to you, but he just. He is a spy. By a lie he entered Yadasara. He betrayed his friend, one Captain O'Ryan, who is with us to bear witness against him. More—he attempted to kill him. What harsh words have you for that man there?"

The king's finger, pointed at me, caused all eyes to turn toward me; Daria's also.

"Gather the best in Drussenland," she said slowly. "Take what is bravest, truest, from them all and make me a man. A great Drussenlander indeed would he be, yet head and shoulders over him would rise Sir Verrall—Clinton Verrall—my knight of the Silver Star."

For some moments there was silence, and no voice was raised to sneer at the character which had been given me.

"You have a powerful advocate, Sir Knight," said the king presently, "but there is another side to the question which condemns you deeply."

"I am not worthy either of such high praise, your majesty, or such deep condemnation."

"You are modest as well as valiant, it would seem."

"I lay claim to being an honest gentleman. The world holds no higher distinction."

"Do honest men lie?" he asked severely. "You did, else had you not entered Yadasara the first time."

"Pardon, your highness. It was Captain O'Ryan who gave certain accounts of me, which satisfied you. In truth, my coming to the city was in the nature of a flight from my enemies."

I was not disposed to spare O'Ryan. Why should I be?

"A valiant knight does not flee from his enemies," said the king.

"I fled from a would-be assassin—Count Vasca."

"Truly, count, you have grievous charges laid against you."

"Who would believe the word of a spy?" said the count savagely.

"That is well spoken, Sir Knight. A spy! What say you to that?"

"Even what your majesty said just now. It is wise to handle similar weapons to those used by an enemy."

In the princess' camp there was not one spy, but a hundred. Ever since I came to Drussenland Count Vasca and his friends have been working to betray the princess. She had not been here now to hear your judgment had not that scoundrel turned against her in the day of battle, sealing a long season of treachery by a crime that any man must revolt at, that your majesty must hate."

"You are here to defend yourself, Sir Knight, not to accuse our friends."

"I have no defense," I answered.

"I have fought for the princess I serve. I have done what a man can do, and my conscience acquits me. But I have a word for your majesty, if you will give me leave."

"Are words from such a man worth your majesty's attention?" said Vasca.

"When this man came to Drussenland he made great promises. He spoke boastfully that he would place the princess on the throne in Yadasara, that he would find the treasure which, it is said, is hidden in this land. This man has accused me of treachery, but my deepest sin has been in throwing in my lot with wiser men rather than be carried away by the boastful promises of a deceiver."

"That is not all your sin, Count Vasca," I said. "Your majesty has accepted the friendship of a man who, while he fawns upon you, is plotting your ruin."

The count laughed contemptuously.

"The proof," said the king, rising from his chair.

"Captain O'Ryan can give it you."

"The count spoke wisely when he said that your words were not worth our attention. We have heard that story from Captain O'Ryan's lips. The captain has confessed that he was in error. His zeal for our safety and some personal dislike to the count, fostered by yourself, Sir Knight, made him hasty in his judgment. Their hands have met in confession and forgiveness. Is this all you have to say?"

"One man's word against another's is poor security for truth," I answered.

"I would that I could prove the truth of my words at the sword's point with the count, with O'Ryan or any other man who doubts me."

"Enough, enough!" cried the king. "Take him back to the fortress. At our pleasure he shall take back his lies and perchance tell some secret of this treasure. There are hard questioners in the fortress, as you will find."

"They must be hard indeed to wring from me one good word for the villain beside your majesty."

"They have drawn out a confession of love for a man's worst enemy before now," said the king.

"Death puts an end to all questions," I answered. "In my country men fear not death if met in an honest cause. I claim no pity. I cry for no mercy, yet I would ask one favor of your majesty."

"What favor?"

"Let me pay the penalty for myself and for this lady."

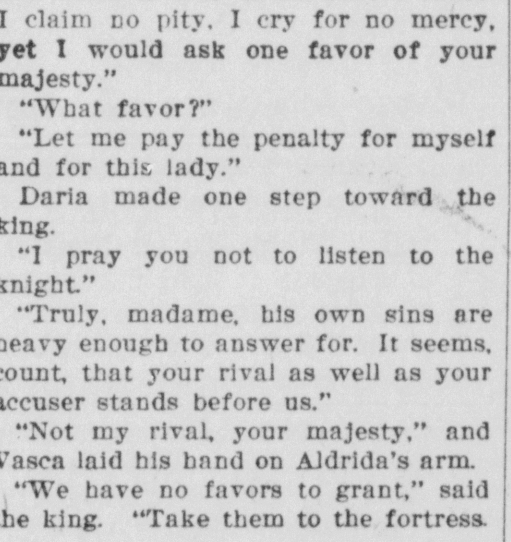

Daria made one step toward the king.

"I pray you not to listen to the knight."

"Truly, madame, his own sins are heavy enough to answer for. It seems, count, that your rival as well as your accuser stands before us."

"Not my rival, your majesty," and Vasca laid his hand on Aldrida's arm.

"We have no favors to grant," said the king. "Take them to the fortress."

"TAKE THEM TO THE FORTRESS. THEY SHALL BOTH DIE."

We will appoint a day for the questioning. They shall both die. So valiant a knight and so fair a lady are too dangerous to live in Drussenland."

Daria made an effort to come to me, but the soldiers stopped her, and she was led from the hall. I heard Lady Aldrida laugh a merry, musical peal as I was taken away. I almost wished that I had killed her that night in the city.

Haw Creek township, Bartholomew county, voted dry Friday, the majority being 307.

Bird and Arbor day was not observed here Friday owing to busy conditions in the city schools.

Orville Everhart and wife of Springfield, Ohio, are here on account of the serious illness of her father, John Pfaffenberger.

Supt. Fitzgibbons of the Columbus schools, was in the city today on his way to Sparksville, being called there by the illness of his mother.

The law will permit but one saloon at Dudleytown, but there are two applicants for license. They are John Niewiddie and Fred Christopher, Jr.

On account of the local option election Thursday, it was decided to postpone the prohibition meeting which had been arranged for Friday at Brownstown.

The Seymour high school representatives for the district oratorical and athletic contests to be held at North Vernon May 12, will probably be selected next week.

The lecture by James M. Taylor Friday evening at the Nazarene church, "Seeking the Lost under Six Flags" was well presented and was heard with great interest.

Harvey W. Godfrey has filed suit in the Bartholomew Circuit Court against Marcus Hollowell, Hayes Hollowell and Laura Silla Ruddick, for the partition of some real estate.—Columbus Republican.

Henry M. Simpson, a well known farmer living near Tunnelton, has been declared of unsound mind and application for his admission to the asylum at Madison, has been made. He is well known in the eastern part of Lawrence county and the western part of Jackson. A short time ago he became insane suddenly. He was violent and made threats against his family. At each attack he had suicidal tendencies and was violent. The attacks lasted several weeks at a time.

GAS DEMONSTRATION.

Seymour Ladies Greatly Pleased.—
Notice of Free Connections.

The series of demonstrations which have been given by the Seymour Public Service Co. during the past four days have been greatly appreciated by the ladies of Seymour. At the close of the demonstration Friday afternoon Miss Eleuthera Davison on behalf of the ladies made a brief address and the ladies expressed their appreciation by a rising vote of thanks to the Seymour Public Service Co. for the instruction which had been given free during this week. The matter of handling their gas stoves with the greatest economy was clearly set forth by Mr. Draper in his series of addresses.

During the week in addition to the free demonstrations which were given on the Seymour Public Service Co. gave 5,000 feet of gas to Mrs. Ben Weil, water heater to Mrs. Jason Brown and Estate gas ranges to Mrs. D. C. Bothwell and Mrs. G. Moore.

They also announce that they will make free gas connections for all customers who purchase ranges from them between this date and June 1st.

The Seymour Public Service Co. has done an excellent thing in offering this series of demonstrations and the ladies are unanimous in their expressions of approval of this liberal course and they expect to profit from the instructions which they have received.

Can't Lower Scale.

The Appellate court has handed down a decision that a public school teacher may recover the full amount of the minimum wages provided by law even though a contract had been signed to teach for less. The ruling was made in a case that was carried up from Evansville in which Sadie Hickman was the plaintiff.

She held a license of a general average of 91 per cent, as a public school teacher, and contracted with the Evansville school authorities to begin a school year, opening September 1, 1905, to continue for ten months. Her pay was to be $35 a month.

She taught the term of school and the school authorities paid her $350 but she presented her claim for an additional $105 and after it was refused, sued for that amount, which the lower court gave her as the balance which was due her minimum legal wages, ninety-one times 2½ cents.

THE BABY

Is to be Robbed of Many a Kiss by Dr. Hurty.

Dr. Hurty, secretary of the state health board, has started an active crusade which promises to rob the baby of many a kiss, or more properly speaking, save it from many a kiss it would be better off without.

In addition to the publicity of the newspapers and the periodicals which are issued by the state board, Dr.
Hurty will make use of the anti-disease exhibit which the board, during the last year or more, has been carrying over the state for the education of the people.

Of course Dr. Hurty doesn't intend the Indiana baby shall never be kissed; but he does intend to reduce the amount of kissing when babies take the passive part. It is the indiscriminate kissing that is perpetrated on the innocent youngster by gabby young girls just from the streets, where dust has been blowing in their faces, or from the crowded street cars, where disease germs run rampant and finding lodging in the throat or on the tongue or lips that he is trying to stop; the kissing that is flavored with the aroma of wine or the smell of beer; that which is seasoned with tobacco, or that which carries with it the deadly germ of some disease carried about by the active participant in the kissing.

"Give the baby a chance," is the spirit behind the protective move.
"Think how vigorously you would fight to avoid being kissed by some of your own neighbors and reflect that the baby may feel the same way about you. At any rate, respect its struggles for existence and do not add to its troubles by unloading on it any troublesome disease germs that you inadvertently may have picked up."

A NEW HAVEN CHILD

Restored to Health by Vinol—Case
Interests Many Parents.

"My little daughter ever since her birth had been frail and sickly, and was a constant source of worryment.
Several months ago I secured a bottle of Vinol and commenced to give it to her. I immediately noted an improvement in her health and appearance. I gave her three bottles of Vinol, and from the good it has done her I can truly say it will do all you claim, and I want to recommend Vinol to any one who desires to build up a weakened, run-down system."—J.
Edmund Miller, New Haven, Conn.
(We guarantee this testimonial to be genuine.)

This child's recovery was due to the combined action of the medicinal elements of the cod's livers, aided by the blood making and strength creating properties of tonic iron, which are contained in Vinol,—and the strongest evidence that Vinol will build up and strengthen delicate children, old people, and the weak, rundown and debilitated, is our willingness to return the purchase money in every case where it fails to give complete satisfaction. The Andrews
Drug Co.
